Legislative Council

The Legislative Council consists of four members chosen by the House and four members chosen from the Senate. Both political parties are equally represented on the Council. Each new Council must be selected by the speaker of the House and the Senate committee on committees before the fiftieth day of the first regular session of the biennium, and members serve for the biennium.

The law charges the council with administrative oversight of legislative activities by the council staff. An important responsibility of the council since 1975 has been supervision of the reorganization of Montana's statutes by a code commission, as reported to the council staff. The Montana Code Annotated, as published by the code commission, was adopted as prime title law of Montana by chapter 127, law of 1975.

As the nonadministrative part of the legislative process, the council staff carries a legislative committee's bill to the floor, in the event a problem demanding legislative action arises during the interim, session study or the problem falls into the time of an interim study committee.

The council may not approve or disapprove a committee's action or recommendations of any interim committee report.

The Council Staff

The staff of the Legislative Council acts as an independent, nonpartisan, 1 partial staff agency for the Legislature, performing those duties and functions assigned by law or as directed or requested by members and committees of the Legislature. The council staff also provides information to the public in legislative matters.

The staff is divided into four functional divisions: Legislative Services Division, Research and Reference Services Division, Legal Services Division, and Management and Business Services Division.

The Legislative Services Division is responsible for clerical preparation of introduced bills, for engraving and editing of bills, and for printing and mailing of the bills. This division uses a computerized word processing system in order to operate with a high degree of effectiveness and accuracy with a relatively small staff of copy editors, typists, and proofreaders and is also responsible for publication of the legislative journals, of a numerical compilation of code sections affected by the session laws, and the final session laws. The computerized word processing system is also utilized in the publication of the Montana Code Annotated.

The Research and Reference Services Division and the Legal Services Division have many of the same responsibilities. Both divisions perform general and specialized research and reference and information functions. Staff members from both divisions may assist in the preparation of the Legislative Review, staff legislative committees during the session and the interim, draft legislation, prepare legislative and staff reports, and provide information on the legislative process to the public. During the interim, the Legal Services Division is primarily responsible for publication and updating of the Montana Code Annotated.

The Research and Reference Division is the continuing organization, developing, maintaining, and general updating of the new Ill. Ann. Statute, including case notes to federal and state court decisions and other material useful to MW users, will be published separately to the statutes and will be available in early 1966. The Annotations will be published in a loose-leaf format so that they may be easily updated.

The Research and Reference Services Division maintains a reference library containing items of special interest to legislators and legislative staff. The library maintains a liaison with other libraries to help make information available as quickly as possible.

The Management and Business Services Division maintains all bookkeeping records; signs all legislative claims and payrolls; requisitions all printing, supplies, and equipment; and serves the House and Senate during a Session.

Legislative Interim Operation:

Section 5-5-20, subsections 15-21 through 18, MCA, provide the boundaries within which the legislature must act during an interim. During the legislative session, resolutions may be proposed regarding interim studies. Immediately following the session, the legislative council must prepare a list of study resolutions adopted in the legislature and distribute it to each legislator. Each legislator is requested to rank the study in order of importance. After reviewing the priority list, the legislator then meets with their staff assistance required for a study, the legislative council determines which studies will be undertaken.

There are four types of committee that function during an interim: full standing committees, interim study committees, select committees, and committees established by law.

Interim study committees are appointed by the legislative council after receiving recommendations from the chairmen of appropriate standing committees in the House and Senate. A study committee must consist of four members from each house. No more than two members from each house may be of the same political party. There should be a majority of the interim work. Each study committee must report its findings and recommendations to the legislature at the opening of the next session.

A select committee is formed to examine a particular issue or problem. This committee is responsible to the house in which it was created. It operates in a fashion similar to the interim study committee except that it may operate during a session. A select committee reports to the legislature upon completion of its study.

The full standing committees are also authorized to function during the interim. However, because of the expense of holding meetings, these committees meet infrequently.

Committees established by law are appointed and meet in accordance with provisions of their authorizing statutes. The Council staff assists such committees upon request.

Legislative Intern Program:

The legislative Council also administers the Legislative Intern Program, established by law in 1974. This program provides an opportunity for qualified Montana college and university students to gain first-hand experience of the legislative process. Each unit of the Montana University System may select at least one intern, and five additional interns may be chosen from applications submitted to the council. The council signs each intern to a legislator, and the intern is directly responsible to that legislator.
